Blueprint For Conservation Emphasized On Farm Tour

One hundred ten farmers, bankers and professional agriculturalist from Amherst, Appomattox, Campbell Counties and Lynchburg toured the Long Island - Gladys area Wednesday on the Robert E. Lee Soil Conservation District - Fidelity National Bank's farm tour. Farming programs based on a conservation plan were emphasized.

Stopping at Whitehall Farm, Jim Britt and son, Steve, showed their modern swine operation. Animal waste from the 30 stall farrowing house empties into a 1.2 acre lagoon designed by the Soil Conservation Service. As the 2 million gallon capacity lagoon fills it can be used for cropland irrigation.

The planned 250 acre cropping system to support the more than 1,100 swine enterprise was reviewed. Jim Britt displayed his chisel plow which has completely replaced his conventional plows.

"The chisel plow is the next best conservation tool to sod planting" said Allan Hunter, Extension Agent, Campbell County. Hunter went on to explain that sod planting was the best practice where resistant weeds and armyworms could be controlled but the chisel plowing was also a good conservation practice. Chisel plowing leaves the mulch on the surface where it reduces erosion and holds moisture. Britt added that a farmer needs at least an 80 horsepower tractor to pull a chisel plow.

As the group looked at Britt's flock of sheep, Jim Smith, District Conservationist discussed sheep. Sheep are now more profitable than cattle and sheep numbers in Virginia increased last year for the first time in decades.

While the group looked admiringly at the 175 year old Whitehall mansion Jim Britt related some of its history. It is one of the best preserved historic homes in the area.

Bob McClenny of the USDA Soil Conservation Service pointed out the unique geology and soils in the Long Island area. "Geologists believe this triassic area was the last of the inland seas. They believe these seas dried up 150-175 million years ago. The maroon shale is actually mud which settled out in the water and hardened into rock", McClenny said.

Continuing to Carl Simpson's Long Island Ranch the group saw a planned grassland program. Bob McCleany showed how grasses that grow during the warm season can provide lush green grazing when cool season grasses such as fescue are dormant. Hybrid bermudagrass is the best warm season plant we have. It must be established by planting the rhizomes since the seed are sterile. Simpson commented that his 75 acre planting of midland bermudagrass was just over a year old and producing excellent grazing. Simpson fertilizes his fescue pastures in August to stimulate more fall growth for fall and winter grazing.

Long Island Ranch is mostly breeding Simmental cattle, an exotic breed. Simpson pointed out that he selected this breed because it performed well on grass.

Many pastures in the district are overstocked and overgraze to the point that the cattle gain poorly and desirable plants are killed. Jerry McCoy with Chevron Chemical Co. displayed a zip seeder and illustrated its many uses in reseeding pastures.

Proceeding on to Gladys to Hutcherson's farm, McClenny noted that this was the third time conservation tours had been conducted here. "No conservation minded group would pass up the chance to again see just about the ultimate in agricultural conservation and management," he said. A conservation plan was developed for this farm and contour strip farming system on their more than 160 acres of rotated crops has been practiced more than 25 years. Conservation specialists have estimated annual soil loss from the 160 acres of cropland to be a little over 1 ton or 18 bushels per acre. This is three times less soil loss than the land can tolerate and not deteriorate. If the cropland was cropped continuously without the benefit of conservation practices, the farm would average losing 17-20 tons or 300-360 bushels of soil per acre annually. This would equal losing an inch of soil every 7½ years. "If everyone applied conservation like John and Fred Hutcherson our streams would be clear today," McClenny noted.

Host for the evening program was William Campbell High School Agriculture Department. Tour Chairman,

Bloodmobile Visit Set For Tuesday

When the Red Cross Bloodmobile makes its first visit of the new fiscal year to Appomattox Tuesday the seven persons shown above will be present to donate another unit of their blood, a unit of blood that may save a life!

Quota Set At 102 Units

The need for blood does not lessen during the summer months - in fact, sometimes it even increases due to the larger number of automobile accidents reported with the increased volume of traffic on the highways.

We surely hope that our number of blood donors does not lessen during the summer months - we hope that it, too, will increase.

The quota for this, the first visit of the new fiscal year is set at 102 units of blood. The Bloodmobile will set up at Liberty Baptist Church and will be there from noon until 6 p.m.

The Junior Woman's Club of Appomattox sponsors the blood program in Appomattox County. The Rev. Earnie Lucas is chairman of the Blood Program assisted by Mrs. Lucy Harvey and Mrs. Mary Katherine Archabald, representative of the Junior Woman's Club.

The Canteen at this visit will be provided by the Home Demonstration Club. A nursery will be provided during the hours of the bloodmobile visit for parents who wish to donate blood. Seventeen year olds are once again reminded that they may donate blood with parental consent.

YOUR GIFT OF LIFE MAY HELP TO . . . replace blood lost by an accident victim; make it possible for a sick child to run and play; enable an elderly patient to withstand surgery; or give a newborn baby a healthy start in life. IT GIVES YOU A WARM FEELING DOWN IT SHOULD!

Plan now to donate a unit of blood on Tuesday and remember . . . "You may not be dying to give blood, but some day you may be dying to receive it."

"Jaycees Help The Bagby's"

Several weeks ago, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman (Luke) Bagby was completely destroyed by fire. Nothing was saved. All of their clothes, furniture, kitchen ware and other household articles were destroyed. In addition to the fire, Mr. Bagby has been hospitalized at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond for an extended period of time.

The Appomattox County Jaycees last week adopted a project to try to help Mr. and Mrs. Bagby recover from their tremendous loss. Union Baptist Church (in the Togs Community) is coordinating efforts in that area to try to raise funds with which to purchase the Bagby family a mobile home.

The Jaycees have started the drive in the Appomattox area by donating one hundred dollars ($100.00) toward the purchase of this mobile home. The Jaycees are requesting that any other civic organizations, churches, businesses or individuals in the Appomattox County area that wish to contribute to this fund please mail checks or money orders to the Appomattox County Jaycees, P.O. Box 265, Appomattox, Va. 24522. Att: J. M. Webb.

Additionally, anyone having any kitchenware or household furnishings they would like to contribute, please carry these items by the Town of Appomattox office building. These items will be left in the Firemen's Game Room. Also any clothes or shoes of the following sizes may be left at the Town Office.

Mr. Bagby - Slacks 36" waist - 31" length

Mr. Bagby - Shirts 16½

Mr. Bagby - Shoes 9½

Mrs. Baby - Dress 24½

The citizens of Appomattox County are urged to help the Jaycees in their efforts to get the Bagby family back on their feet. Won't you help?

Jaycees Plan Ninth Annual Radio Day

On Sunday, August 17, the Appomattox County Jaycees will hold their Ninth Annual Jaycee Radio Day on WFLO Radio in Farmville. The Jaycees will begin selling advertisements to area businesses July 21,1975 and will continue the ad sales through August 6 if for any reason you are not contacted by a Jaycee and would like to participate, please contact Addison Elder at Evans Barber Shop.

Inflation? No way!! The prices of these ads are the same as they were in 1967. Additionally, the program has changed very little. The Jaycees like to think that the businessmen are getting a better deal each year and they probably are.

So when that Jaycee comes by soliciting ads tell him you will participate. Help the Jaycees to help Appomattox. Our future is here.

Child Abuse & Neglect Of Concern To Virginians

RICHMOND - Governor Mills E. Godwin, Jr. said recently that a special unit has been established in the Department of Welfare to handle "around the clock" reports of suspected child abuse or neglect situations.

According to the Governor, an integral part of the new operation is a toll-free telephone number, 1-800-552-7096, where complaints from throughout the Commonwealth can be received 24-hours a day, 7 days a week.

When a complaint is received, the new Bureau of Child Protective Services contacts the appropriate local welfare or social service office and requests an immediate investigation into the situation.

There are 123 local offices, each of which is required to have someone "on call" 24-hours a day to handle such emergent situations.

After completing the investigation, the local office reports back to the Bureau of Child Protective Services.

Of Interest To Food Stamp Recipients

Persons receiving Social Security, SSI, or Railroad Retirement may expect a change in their Food Stamp Purchase Requirement which will correspond with the increase in benefits, according to an announcement from Appomattox County Department of Social Services.

This change will be effective by August 1, 1975.
